

What happened next?

There is a series of weird events happening in this town...

You're going to read the beginnings of the stories and try to predict what will happen next.

Use the narrative tenses that can be formed with:

regular and irregular verbs

had + past participle

was/were + -ing

Meeting ag

Stopping the time

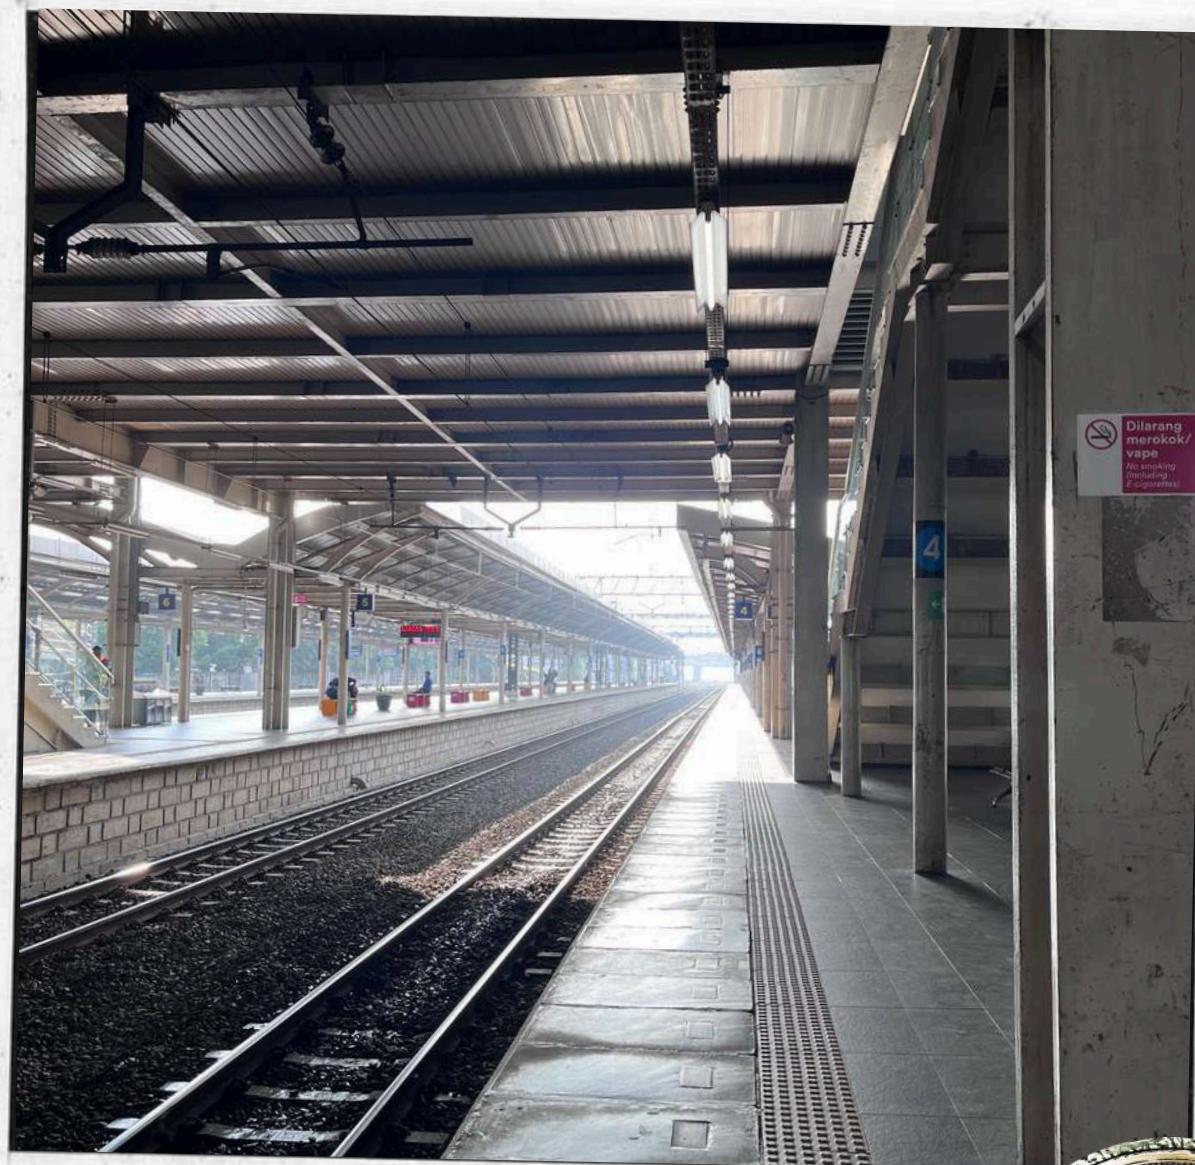

What happened next?

Holly had been waiting for the train for over an hour when she noticed that nobody else was on the platform anymore. A few minutes earlier, it had been full of people.

She was about to check the schedule when she heard her name being announced...

But she hadn't told anyone she was travelling...

Unexpected
mishap

What happened next?

Daniel had just sat down in a café when the waiter brought him a coffee.

He hadn't ordered anything yet.

When he tried to explain, the waiter smiled and said, "You always order this."

But Daniel had never been there before...

0110G463544
Odd coincidence

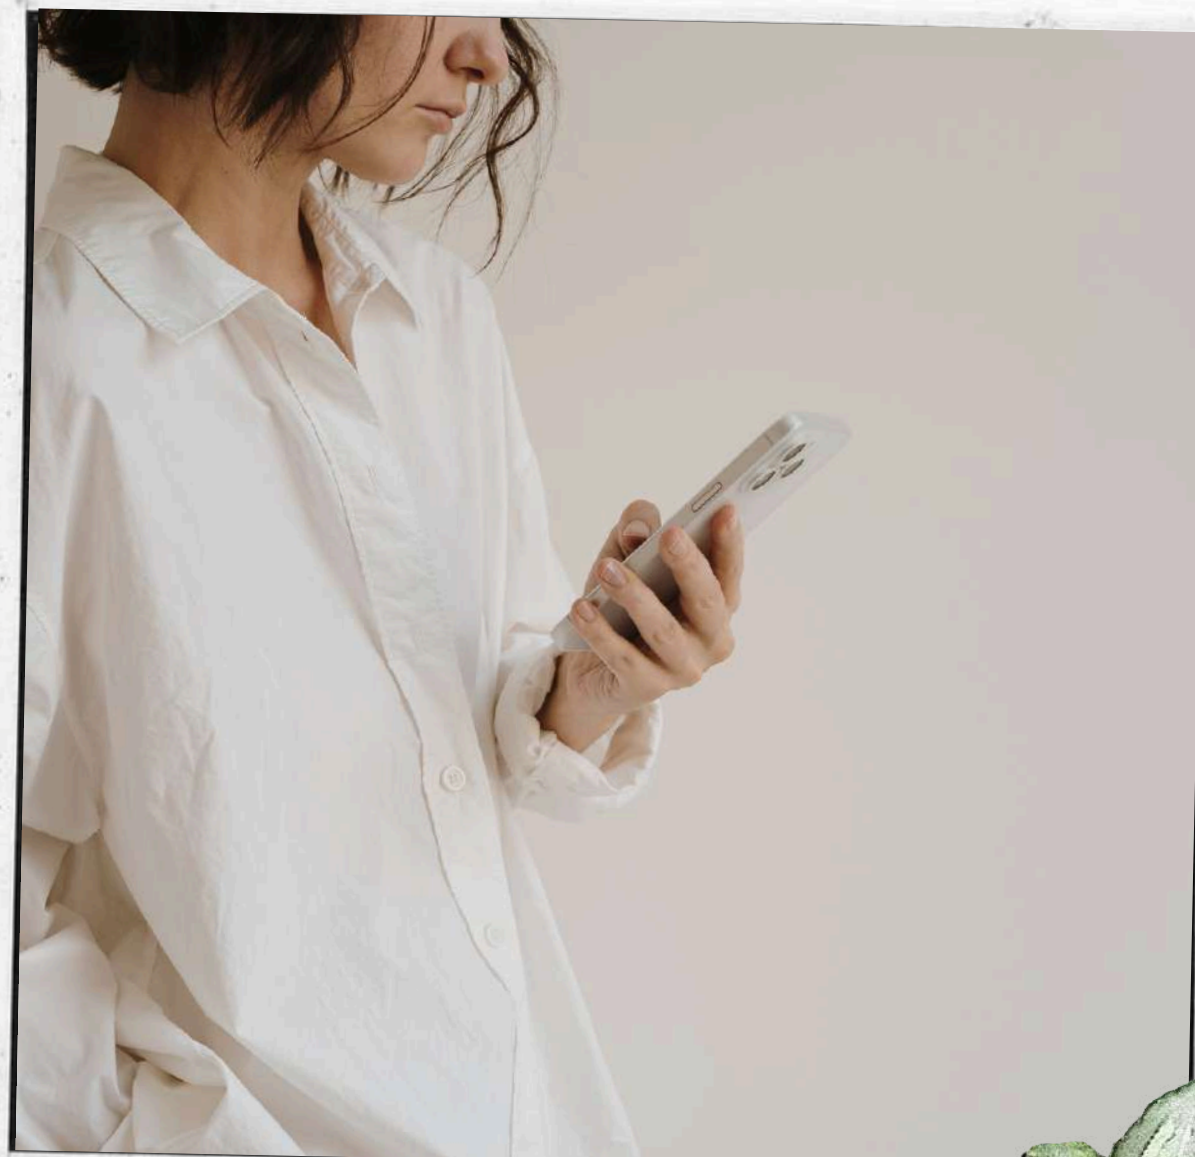

What happened next?

While Mia was scrolling through old photos on her phone, she found one she didn't remember taking.

In the picture, she was sleeping in her bed... Who could possibly take that photo?

She had been living alone for two years...

0110G463544

Mysterious pic

What happened next?

Alex had been running in the park when he noticed that every clock he passed showed a different time.

His phone, the café clock, even a stranger's watch...

When he checked his own watch again, it had stopped completely...

Stopping the time

What happened next?

Sophie had just locked her door and left the house when she got a notification on her phone:

“Motion detected in your living room.”

She checked the app – and saw herself sitting on the sofa.

But she was standing outside...

0110G463544

Strange clone

What happened next?

Mark had been working late in the office when the lights suddenly went off.

A second later, his computer turned on by itself.

A document opened automatically...

It had his name on it – and today's date – but he hadn't created it...

0110G403544
Open me...

What happened next?

Emma had been listening to music on the bus when the song suddenly changed to one she had never heard before.

The strange thing was... the lyrics were describing exactly what she was doing at that moment.

Special song

What happened next?

Jake had been walking through the city when he saw a street he didn't remember before.

It wasn't on his map.

At the end of the street, there was a small shop with a sign:

"We've been expecting you."

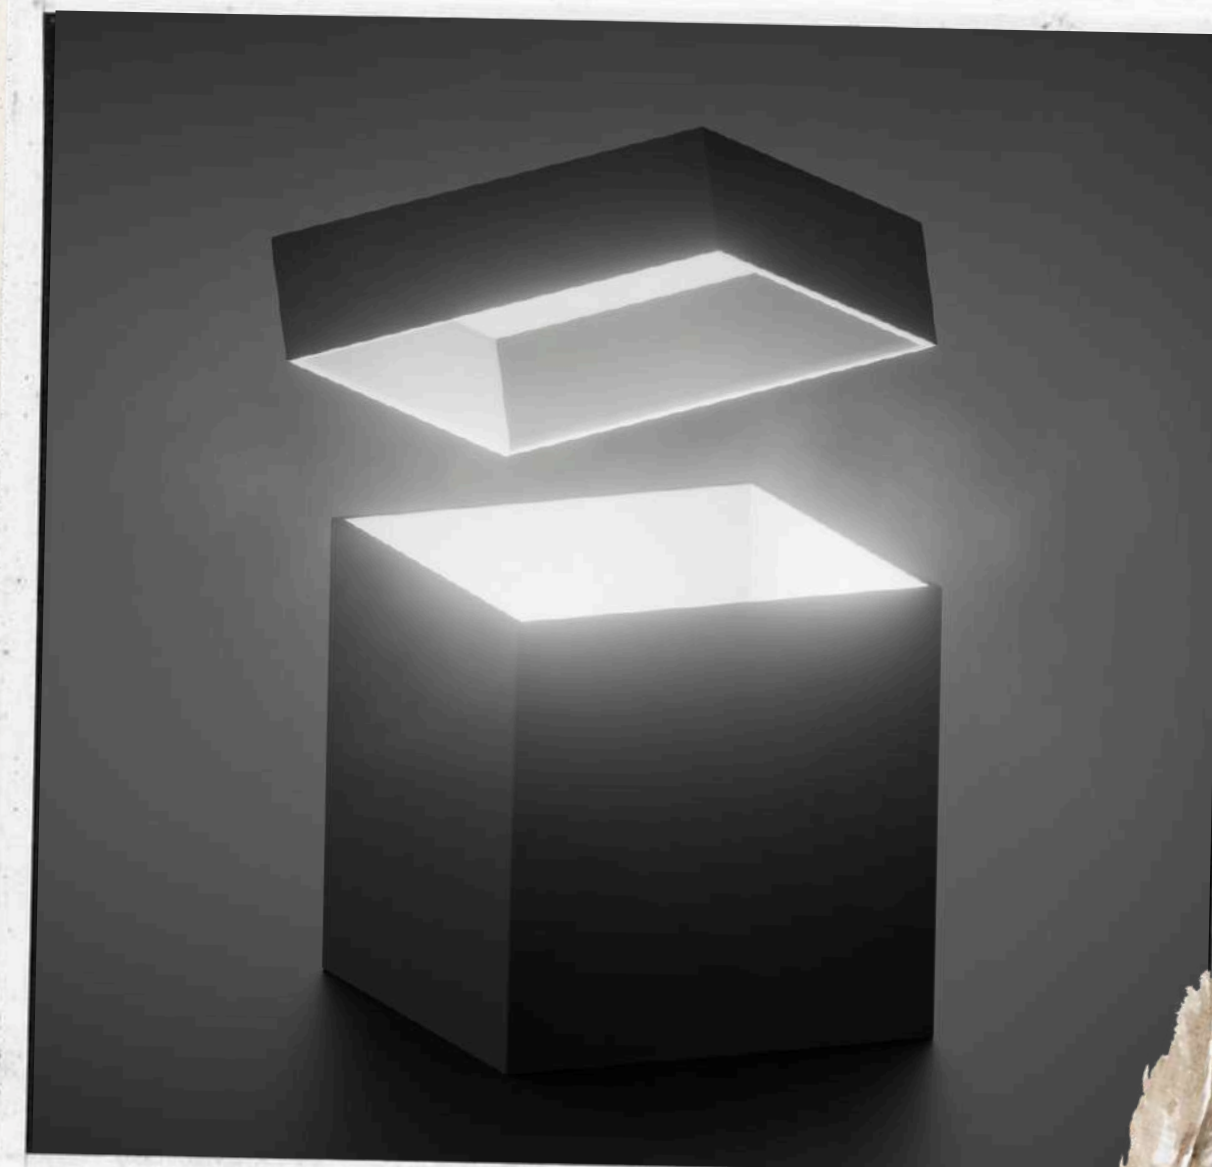

Meeting again

What happened next?

While Anna was cooking dinner, she heard someone knocking at the door. When she opened it, nobody was there – just a small box. She brought it inside. A minute later, the box began to glow...

0110G4 3544
Surprising parcel

What happened next?

Leo had been studying in the library when he noticed a book open on the table next to him.

Nobody was sitting there, so he decided to take the book to the worker.

He looked closer and saw that the book pages were completely blank. When all of a sudden, the words began to appear out of nowhere...

0110G463544

Book message

